

Men of Fashion

By Priyanka Arora

For a more modern and younger style, some young men have been mixing and combining different fashions for a more unique style. Some men have broadened their horizons and separated themselves from the traditional look. One of the most popular trends is combining different fabrics such as cotton and silk, denim and seersucker. Bermudas with bright colored t-shirts are also one of the most popular trends for summer. One of the worst errors that men have made in the past year is to make their outfits extremely combined, thus making themselves look boring and traditional. What is in right now is to be as far away as possible from whatever is predictable in fashion.

Just as in women's fashion, a man's skin tone and body silhouette are always important when choosing a new fashion style. It is important to always feel comfortable, since what you wear projects how you feel.

Layering is a trend that is usually seen in the winter but will be one of the most preferred at any time for this season. Wear a polo shirt over your t-shirt and cover them with a formal jacket or a sportier jacket, such as a hoody, for a more casual look. Layering adds style and versatility, avoiding simplicity, but always keeping in mind the weather. You don't want your sweat drops to appear all of a sudden if you take off your jacket. Layering is also useful if you are heavy. Try using a v-neck sweater and vertical lines or small prints.

Blue, red and green are the colors for this season and can be used for every skin tone. Try combining them with more neutral tones like gray to step back from the conventional. Seersucker and linen are popular fabrics for summer, ideal for warm weather. To add more personality and individuality to your look, no matter to what occasion, wear Converse All-Star sneakers which break the barriers for a formal affair. This type of shoe, with a short sleeve black shirt, black pants and a formal tie, will always make you look fashionable. You can also wear them with funky printed shirts for a more youthful style.

Another odd item for the summer, but very much in demand, is the cardigan. This button-up type of sweater comes in solid colors and with designs, perfect to wear over a polo shirt or t-shirt. Men shouldn't be afraid to play around with several styles that can be worn with cardigans. For a more casual look after work, just change your blazer to a more casual cardigan or v-neck sweater and roll up your sleeves.

The safari look is another trend for this summer. Khakis, army green and leather accessories, such as belts, bracelets and even necklaces, will complement this look.

Men should always be adventurous and create untraditional combinations and fashion experiments because, in that contrast, they will find the magic of fashion. The typical blazer and tie can be substituted with a button-down shirt with a v-neck sweater. Try some of these new ideas and create your own summer fashion trends!
